Vol. XLVI, No. 3 March 2024

The angel said to the women, "Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here; he has risen, just as he said. Come and see the place where he lay.—Matthew 28: 5-6

What is your life? You are a mist that appears for a little while and then vanishes. —James 4:14

If I'm being honest, I confess I was annoyed. Not that "You're standing on my last nerve," annoyance, but more, the annoyed I get when the grocery store express check-out line says No More Than Twelve Items, and the guy in front of me clearly has exceeded his dozen, by a lot. It was supposed to be a simple drop-off. I pulled into the parking lot of the post office with a single envelope to put in the mail slot, but the car in front of me stopped abruptly in the lane that clearly says No Parking or Waiting at Any Time! (There's not really an exclamation point, but there should be.) I swerved around the car and pulled in the first open parking spot, thinking "Should I say something or not?" As I bounded out of my truck, and walked in the building, the car was still just parked. No one got out. No one got in. As I walked out, I felt my heart sink, and my guilty conscience kick into overdrive, because as I looked into the vehicle a very elderly couple sat there. I hadn't noticed that the handicapped parking slots were full. The old man struggled to get out. He shakily pulled his mask up to cover his nose and mouth and clamped his hand on the railing to steady himself as he navigated down the steep steps. Attempting to ease my guilt, I smiled and asked, "How are you doing, sir?" "I'm still here," he replied, as he continued his arduous journey to walk the 15 or so yards to drop off his single envelope.

"I'm still here." Ever since my encounter with that man, I've been haunted by the Holy Ghost to revisit the question why God has me here, at this time. Like you, God has put people in front of me who are hurting, weary, exhausted from not seeing the fruits of their labor. Almost daily, God puts people in our paths, who have never felt the love of Jesus and calls us to be His ambassadors. Every day, God opens wide the gates of opportunity to show love and compassion to the server who brings us the wrong order, the guy with too many items in the express check-out line, the elderly couple parked in the No Parking zone.

I'm Still Here

Recently, I had dinner with a group of Christian leaders to discuss how our respective organizations could lead like Jesus together. As we fellowshiped, a single waitress worked fervently to accommodate our every request. As she moved to check on each guest, the Holy Spirit moved among us, and a single question was asked, "How might we pray for you?" A little choked up, the waitress asked us to pray for her son, who had just enlisted in the military. We got up, encircled her, and prayed for her son's safety and for her, the peace of God that surpasses all understanding. Every person we encounter needs to know, "How can I pray for you?"

At the end of this month, we will celebrate the most significant event in human history, the sacrificial death and resurrection of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. In this day of mass media and digital communication, it has been proven over and over that the most effective way we can get others to experience Easter Sunday is to personally invite them to worship.

This Easter the Dover Baptist Association is working with our Central Virginia Raceway Ministries and Richmond Raceway to invite NASCAR fans to a special afternoon Easter worship service before the race. They will hear well-known drivers and their wives share their testimonies. Our prayer is that for every Christian who comes, they will invite an unbeliever, or hurt, once-was-a-believer, to hear how God loves them so much, He gave His one and only Son for them. This month we will also announce new mission opportunities to serve the lost, and those Jesus called, the least of these. This month, as we continue to prepare our hearts and minds for Easter, it would be a great time to pray, "I'm still here. Lord, what would you have me to do?" God bless.—Arnold 'Win' Davis, Executive Director
